Hungary is a land of more than 1,000 hot springs. Even the ancient Romans prized the healing effects of Hungarian thermal waters and developed bathing culture in Hungary more than 2000 years ago. During the Turkish settlement in the 16th century, the Turks added their own beautiful Turkish Baths, some of which are still in used today.

Spas are located in big cities and smaller towns throughout the whole country. Some Spas in Budapest are located in beautiful old buildings in Classical or Turkish style architecture back between 100-400 years.

Lake Hévíz is a real natural phenomenon with a yearly average water temperature of 25 °C (77 °F). It is the largest biologically active thermal lake in the world, which is convenient for bathing. The turquoise coloured lake is covered for most of the year in pink and white lotuses. The lake's water renews itself every 72 hours, and it is in constant motion all the time.

Bath treatment includes the basis of the medical and healing treatment of Lake Hévíz. It is also important to shed the light on the unique medical treatments such as mud-packs, the famous weight bath, as well as different types of medical massage and drinking cures.
Hungary is one of the leading countries of European Medical Tourism. It is a well-known fact that Hungary has one of the most demanding medical and dental educational systems in the world.

A quarter of all medical students at Hungarian universities come to study from all over the world, and many Hungarian specialists teach and practice internationally. The main reason for Hungary’s leading role in European medical tourism is its vast experience and practice on the international market. Since Hungary joined the European Union, medical tourism has become more varied and more international.

In fact, the cost of treatments and patient service is much cheaper than other countries. The most popular treatments and procedures amongst international patients are dentistry, plastic and orthopaedic surgery, cardiac rehabilitation, fertility treatments, dermatology and anti-aging treatments, obesity treatments, addiction programs and eye surgery (both general and ocular implantation).

Why Hungary?

- Easily accessible
- Has the world’s class medical training
- Good language skills are provided
- Accreditation
- Good exchange rate
- Affordable for different budgets
- Provides medical tourism program packages

Due to its particularly rich stock of game, Hungary is one of the most attractive destinations for hunters. Red deer, fallow deer, wild boar, mouflon and roe deer can all be found (and hunted) in Hungary. As well as the European hare, the pheasant, the grey partridge, the bean goose, the greater white-fronted goose, mallard, Eurasian teal and the Eurasian woodcock.

Most of the game stock lives free, in their natural habitats. Some foresters formed the so called „game preserves” in their territories, especially for wild boar. The Hungarian countryside also has plenty of small game. First and foremost the pheasant, present which is found in almost every corner of the country.

After a successful hunting trip, is there anything better than to relax in a comfortable armchair of a chateau hotel, enjoying a special cigar and a cold drink. We provide hunting programs uniquely organised for our customers’ individual expectations, experience and skills.
